

Since 8th June 2015 the paper counterpart to the photocard driving licence hasn't been legally valid and won't be updated

Instead you can see your driving record online: go to GOV.UK and search 'view driving licence'

You may want to share your driving record with people such as car hire companies or employers

To do this you need to give them a code, which you can get when you view your licence on GOV.UK

Each code is valid for 21 days and, to protect your privacy, can only be used once

You should destroy your counterpart but keep your actual licence

(Your licence is the plastic photocard or one of the paper licences which were issued until 1998)

We replaced around 445,000 lost counterparts last year and each replacement cost the driver £20

Why?

Employers and car hire companies can now view a driver record that's guaranteed to be completely up-to-date

(reducing their risk and increasing road safety)

If you need more information go to GOV.UK and search for 'no more counterpart'
